Briefing: California's Response to the Opioid Epidemic

Local opioid safety coalitions bring together a broad group of stakeholders committed to decreasing opioid use and overdose deaths. Leaders from public health, hospitals, addiction treatment, medical societies, law enforcement, health plans, and others find creative ways to solve the opioid epidemic in their communities.

Together, these coalitions form the California Opioid Safety Network.

This map shows counties with active coalitions statewide. CHCF supports a program of training and technical assistance to accelerate the impact of these coalitions, through the Public Health Institute's Center for Health Leadership and Practice. To learn more or to find contact information for a local coalition, please visit www.chcf.org/cosn/about.

